Vinification

Hand-picked, the grapes were immediately crushed and pressed. Thereafter the must was naturally clarified by gravity. This still unfermented grape juice has been kept (without the addition of sulphites) in cold storage, at a very low temperature, in order to prevent an alcoholic fermentation. Over the year periodically small portions of it have then been brought to alcoholic fermentation: by increasing the temperature to 12°-14° C while yeast was added. This occurs in stainless steel pressure tanks to preserve natural CO₂. Malolactic fermentation has been avoided in order to preserve the varietal fruit characteristics and freshness. The fermentation was interrupted at an alcohol level of about 5,5%, by lowering the temperature again and filtration. At this stage this partially fermented wine was bottled.

Ageing	No ageing.

Tasting notes

Brilliant straw-yellow colour with golden reflections. Slight sparkling, this Moscato d'Asti has an intense aroma of ripe yellow fruit (peaches, apricots, pears), floral notes (rose petals) and refined exotic spices (freshly cut ginger). On the palate it shows a delicate, well-balanced sweetness in combination with a refined sparkle and well-balanced acidity, good complexity and a fresh, persistent fruity aftertaste (fresh apricots).

Food Pairing

Perfect as an aperitif or an accompaniment to Pan-Asian cuisine and lobster as well as pastry, fruit based as well as creamy desserts, blue cheese.
