Vinification

The larger amount of the Zweigelt Rose comes from grapes harvested in a state of middle ripeness, gently pressed like white wine, a smaller part is from highest quality Zweigelt grapes where the must flowing out of the press is used before the pressing even starts. After fermentation in stainless steel tank the wine undergoes partly or complete malolactic fermentation (depending on the year).

Ageing

In stainless steel tanks.

Description

In Brief

Only a few people might know that the family of Dr. Zweigelt, who managed to interbreed a new variety out of Blaufrankisch and St. Laurent in 1921, had vineyards in Langenlois. Actually, the Brundlmayer family own the former Zweigelt cellar and part of the vineyards. They make a varietal wine from Zweigelt but also blend it with other grape varieties where it contributes deep fruit and body.

Tasting notes

Beautiful light-weighted pink colour, intriguing aroma of fine red fruits (cherry, wild strawberries) accompanied by delicate floral hints (violets) and (youthful) yeasty notes. A refreshing front palate with lively acid elements, then a red-fruited mid-palate with a juicy profile, medium body, balanced, really much fun based, finely structured with a pleasant floral and slightly herbal finale.

Food Pairing

Perfect as an aperitif or with tapas, antipasti or smoked salmon.
