Description

In Brief

Kera Tamara, daughter of Ivan Alexander (a Bulgarian king who ruled from 1331 to 1371), was set to be married to the Turkish Sultan Murad in order to preserve the peace between the two countries. At first, she didn't want to leave, but in the end, she had to. One day after leaving the then capital city of Veliko Tarnovo, she reached the village of Maryan. The princess stayed overnight at the local monastery and when it was time to leave the next day, she asked the local people to keep part of her there. Since then, the village is called Maryan, from the name "Mara", short for Tamara. Legend has it that where Kera Tamara walked and cried, vines sprouted from her tears, which give the grape variety Dimyat. This gives the name to the "Sense of Tears" wines. Her story is not sad, however, because she became the sultan's favourite wife and was buried next to him in Bursa.

Tasting notes

A delicate aroma of flowers, honey and lemon intertwine in an elegant harmony. Fresh and balanced, honey, lemon and vanilla are once again noticeable on the palate.

Food Pairing

Salads, fine fish, white meats. An excellent aperitif as well.
